

Produce a portrait BUT not on a hard-boiled egg!

At Easter Time, we thought we could have a bit of fun by challenging you to produce a 'Hard Boiled Humanities' portrait of a key figure in history. In the past this would have been using a boiled egg! However, as eggs are difficult to get for many of us; and should not be wasted, we want you to get creative and use something else from your house to create your key figure. For example, why not use an empty toilet or kitchen roll holder, the shell left from a boiled egg you have eaten (like Anne Boleyn below), a ball, small plant pot, let your imagination run wild!

Anne Boleyn

Neil Armstrong

William Wallace

All entries photographed with your name and year group plus a mini explanation (optional) should be sent to sgroom@noadswood.hants.sch.uk by 24 April for judging the following week

Credits: This concept comes from James Henderson (@MrHumanities), and was shared on Twitter by Barry Dunn (@SeahamRE) with the poster created by Andrew Rousell.

